 Bike trails, especially paved ones, are essential to safety of both the cyclists and the motorists. Eden Prairie is in a dire need of paved bike trails - it is falling behind other cities in the area, which is a shame for such a rich city as ours.
-  Anonymous user's Opinion Responded C High priority
 For the people that use the trails they are of vital importance to the city. I do think a lot of people have not experienced the variety of neighborhood, park, and other trails that are out there but they are one of the main things that makes Eden Prairie different from surrounding communities. I would love to see the city work with our neighbors in Chanhasseen to fix the regional trail down to the river valley. I would also encourage the city to work on better enforcement of unsafe practices with backyard dogs as they run up and attack people going by on some trails.

 I love the biking and walking trails in Eden Prairie. Keep it up, add more, and maintain the ones we've got.
-  Anonymous user's Opinion Responded C High priority
 There are lots of streets without sidewalks which can be dangerous, especially for busy and/or low visibility sections like Duck Lake Trail between Dell and 101.
-  Anonymous user's Opinion Responded C High priority
 Great walking and bike trails provide both recreational opportunities as well as make our city more walkable. Should be a very high priority!
-  Anonymous user's Opinion Responded C High priority
 The biking paths make the community both a pleasant place, and very accessible for those without cars.
